

BRISLEY COMMON

Brisley Common is managed by Brisley Parish Council. The livestock you see grazing on the common are owned by the holders of historical rights of grazing and this right also permits them to erect electric fencing to contain their stock.

The Parish Council supports this, as it is not just a traditional right, but an important part of the upkeep of the common which, otherwise, would quickly revert to scrub. This system of grazing by animals is endorsed by the Norfolk Wildlife Trust as part of the essential maintenance of the common. In its present state, the Green is a haven for wildlife and fauna.

Walkers are always welcome but we ask that you please take care not to move or damage the electric fencing.

Finally, it is important to be aware that householders adjoining the Common are responsible for keeping livestock out of their gardens; this responsibility does not lie with the Grazing Rights Holders.
